Chapter 1 : Choses Story Sixties Perec Georges Grove

Things: a story of the sixties. things (french les choses) is a 1965 novel by georges perec, his first. the novel met with popular and critical success and won the prix renaudot in 1965. In georges perec ...histoire des années soixante (1965; things: a story of the sixties) concerns a young parisian couple whose personalities are consumed by their material goods. in 1967 he joined the ouvroir de littérature potentielle (workshop of potential literature). "as a witty attack on consumerism things is as much a parable of the nineties as it is a story of the sixties" (sunday times) "perec's first novel is a masterpiece of elegaic mockery" (financial times) "things, perec's first novel, is an innovative, perceptive and even moving study of corrosive consumerism" (independent) A story of the sixties; french title: les choses; translated and with an introduction by david bellos (1990) previously translated by helen lane and published as les choses: a story of the sixties (1968) Perec, georges, 1936-1982 things: a story of the sixties, with, a man asleep. things. a story of the sixties first published in france with the title les choses by editions julliard, 1965 a man asleep first published in france with the title un homme qui dort by editions denoël, 1967 Get this from a library! les choses; a story of the sixties.. [georges perec] Perec is noted for his constrained writing: his 300-page novel la disparition (1969) is a lipogram, written without ever using the letter "e". perec won the prix renaudot in 1965, the prix jean vigo in 1974, the prix médicis in 1978. georges perec died on march 3, 1982. Perec's snappy story of the sixties should be subtitled 'the rise and fall of the hipster.' modern, timeless and deliciously snarky. the only glaring anachronism is the married protagonists' irregular employment as market researchers - replace that with freelance web or graphic design and perec has perfectly parodied any couple in their late 20s currently vibing on down in hoxton, williamsburg
